

International DE Designation Application

The Development Education Program is designed to encourage an international exchange of ideas and opportunities. In an effort to encourage trained development educators to learn from their international peers and to learn from international travel opportunities, the six international DE Programs offer their Development Educators the opportunity to achieve an International DE Designation.

To achieve the distinction of an International DE, Development Educators will:

1. Complete their local DE Program – What year did you attend the US DE program?
2. Complete and independent studies project appropriate to the learning objectives of the US DE Program – Examples of such programs may include but are not limited to hosting an international delegation, conducting training on cooperative principles and values, doing a domestic or volunteer assignment – Please explain your project here:
3. Participate in an international program, conference or training opportunity. This may include but is not limited to: an international DE program, an international emersion program, or completing an international volunteer assignment. Please share your international opportunity.
4. Attend WOCCU's International Conference or a Regional Confederation Conference. Please share the conferences you have attended.
